

Get The Facts:

Illinois does NOT require people to declare a party affiliation when registering to vote.

Instead, a voter will simply state which party's ballot they would like when they go to vote at the primary. A voter can change which party's ballot they pull every primary.

